

Echo Hills becomes a home at opening

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

It was a cold and blustery day 10 months ago when the sod was ceremoniously turned for the Echo Hills Legions Apartments.

It was a cold and blustery Friday when dozens of people gathered for the official opening of the seniors apartments — but this time everyone was warmly ensconced in the welcoming new lounge of Haliburton's latest contribution to affordable housing.

Considering the pride of the community, perhaps the architects at Totten Sims Hubicki should have made the lounge a little bigger to accommodate the residents and their guests. Especially for Friday's ceremonies, when there were so many people to thank as yet another project of the Haliburton Community Housing Corporation was completed.

"To see the happiness and contentment on the residents' face make the efforts all worthwhile," said corporation president and master of ceremonies Cliff Dawson.

"A spirit of optimism and continued faith kept everyone on the move, even though there seemed to be, and there were, numerous delays along the way," said Jan Shipley, another corporation stalwart.

It's not a coincidence that Dawson and Shipley are also associated with Branch 129 of the Haliburton Royal Canadian Legion. More than a decade ago, Please turn to page 2

A MOMENT TO BE PROUD OF: Smiles were certainly evident on Friday afternoon as the Echo Hills Legion Apartments were officially opened. Taking part in the ribbon cutting were John Hubicki of Totten Sims Hubicki; resident Darlene McElwain; Corporation president Cliff Dawson; Marty Ginsberman of the Ministry of Housing; contractor George Wiggers; Legion president Ed Pickard and Dysart et al Reeve Chris Hodgson.

Minden water woes may well be over

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

The Village of Minden may have to ration its water again this summer, but if the construction of a proposed well goes as planned, it will be the last time for a while.

"By the end of the year, the water should be on stream," Triton Engineering Services Hydrologist Tim Lottimor told about 50 people who gathered at the Minden Community Centre last Wednesday night to express concerns about the new well proposed for Bobcaygeon Street.

He said the new well should service between 800 and 900 people and population projections show that should last the town 20 years. But there are no guarantees.

And if the coming summer is like the last one, there are no guarantees that outside water use won't be restricted.

"There will definitely be a shortage," Roads Superintendent Clayton Cameron said. "It should be the same as last year, but it really depends on the weather — if it's a wet year, there won't be as much of a problem."

In 1990, AHM Council temporarily restricted the use of town-supplied water for certain purposes at certain times within the village. The by-law was enacted again last summer.

Triton, the engineering consultants hired by the municipality to find a way to get more water, drilled a test hole for a well on St. Germaine Street last year, but the water was not clear enough for public consumption. But a sample from the test hole drilled on Bobcaygeon Street was been approved by the Ministry of the Environment.

Dorset development discussed in depth

by LEN PIZZEY
Publisher

More than 50 Dorset residents turned up at a public meeting last Tuesday to hear concerns, fears and outright opposition to a proposed commercial development on Highway 35 in the hamlet.

But planner Robert Lehmann, who is representing developer Keith MacAllister, told citizens most of their worries were either based on misinformation, or have already been addressed by agencies such as the Health Unit and the Ministry of Transport.

MacAllister has applied to rezone the 26 acre parcel he owns on the east side of Highway 35, just south of Harvey Avenue. The land presently is the site of Langford Canoe, a small manufacturing facility owned by MacAllister. The rezoning would create a commercial zone fronting highway 35, an industrial parcel housing the canoe factory, and rural zoning on the rest of the property, which has 900 feet of highway frontage. MacAllister plans to construct a two storey, 20,400 square foot commercial complex on the property if the rezoning is approved.

Possible uses for the lower floor of the building noted in the rezoning application include an animal hospital, a medical or dental clinic; business, professional and administrative offices, a convenience store, a dry cleaner, a model home, a retail shop, service shops such as

Papers get postal reprieve

Canadian community newspapers have won a partial reprieve from massive postal rate increases that were scheduled to take place March 1, but the announcement by federal communications minister Perrin Beatty does little to address the core issue of the fairness of the increases, and the administrative headaches they have caused.

Postal rates for community newspapers were supposed to increase by up to 1000 percent for letter carrier delivery to subscribers outside trading zone, a category into which close to 1000 Echo subscribers—primarily cottage owners—fall. The increases would have pushed the cost of mailing The Echo to those subscribers from an average of seven or eight cents a copy to between 53 and 83 cents, depending on the weight of each issue. On February 28, however, Beatty announced that his department would subsidize half of those costs for one year by a direct subsidy to Canada Post. The full brunt of Canada Post's massive attack on community newspaper mailings will now be felt on March 1, 1993.

While publishers appreciate Beatty's efforts on their behalf, the short term reprieve has created additional administrative headaches and frustrations throughout the industry. And the impact of the increases, even with the subsidy, are substantial. The Echo's postal bill, for example, has jumped from an average of less than $100 a week to more than $300 a week, and will be even higher when advertising lineage increases in the summer months and the paper consequently contains more news and features and prints more pages.

For readers who have paid a postal surcharge based on the anticipated March 1 increase, The Echo will provide a one, two or three month subscription extension depending on the amount involved. Out of town subscribers who renew over the next few months will still be asked to pay a postal surcharge, but the amounts will be adjusted monthly to reflect the months remaining under the 50 percent subsidy, and the amount that The Echo will have to pay once the full increase is imposed next March.

The whole issue has been a frustrating one for The Echo staff, and for our readers, and it seems those problems will only continue in the future. We appreciate your patience and understanding.

Board to reconsider accommodation plan

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

The school board will reconsider the five options that have been presented to address the accommodation program at a special meeting on April 15.

"We hope people will view this as an honest attempt by the board to address concerns that have arisen," Director Brad Saunders told The Echo at last Tuesday's regular board meeting. "We believe this is a very important issue."

He said the board will review all of the information involved in the four options they considered last fall and the additional option presented last month by Minden residents Bryan Kernohan and Doug Campbell.

Dysart Trustee Len Salvatori said the decision to reconsider the issue was obviously the right one.

"We need to go back and take a look at all of the information: the sewage capacity for a new school, the population figures, the bussing implications — everything," he said. "Then, hopefully, we can make a decision that everyone will be pleased with."

After reviewing four original options to address the county's student accommodation problem last October, the board decided to build an addition onto Archie Stouffer Elementary School, build a new K-6 school in Haliburton village on land it owns near the board office and turn J.D. Hodgson Elementary School into a junior high for Grades 7 to 9.

But many residents opposed the plan, particularly those in Minden who did not wish to bus their children to Haliburton for Grades 7 and 8. Those to grades are currently offered at Archie Stouffer in Minden.

Anson, Hindon and Minden council held a special public meeting in February to address the concerns of residents there and a fifth option was presented that called for the creation of a junior high in Minden and an addition to J.D. Hodgson.

Legion makes a difference as Echo Hills demonstrates the Legion realized that to ensure that its members' quality of life continued into their old age, seniors needed someplace safe and affordable to live. In Legion tradition, it also looked at the needs of the wider community, and began the process which saw the completion of Parklane Apartments and Echo Hills Legion Apartments. The corporation — which has no formal ties to the Legion — also facilitated the construction of the Mountain Street Apartments.

"It shows our commitment to the community . . . and we especially seem to like the dawn and twilight years," said present-day Legion President Ed Pickard. Branch 129 sponsors various programs, sports teams and events for children and seniors. "We have evolved into an organization that has expanded its responsibilities and responds to the needs of the community. This building is a monument of our ongoing commitment to Haliburton."

"The Legion saw a need, filled it and should be congratulated for what they've done," agreed John Hubicki of the consulting firm. "Many things have been accomplished and we have converted a project into a home. The building is also a credit to the Canadian work man."

George Wiggers, whose construction firm built the 40-unit apartments using some local tradespeople, said "it was a real team effort, built in the spirit of co-operation and goodwill."

"It's another focal point of the community," said Dysart et al Reeve Chris Hodgson, crediting the Legion for bettering life in rural Ontario. The county warden, George Simmons, said "quality of life is what councils, Legions and sponsors strive to better."

For the seniors who have struggled and worked hard all their lives, and now can relax in such comfortable surroundings, "this is probably one of the happiest moments. You deserve it," Simmons said.

"I wonder if some people know what the Royal Canadian Legion does in their communities," pondered MP Bill Scott. "There are so many who don't understand in this busy life what Legions do and what the volunteer sector does. Americans would love to have some of the things we love."

"You people in Haliburton County, you can be very proud — you're not the biggest community means to the nearly 55 seniors, singles and handicapped residents who are filling the units with vitality, laughter, love and friendship we can indeed say it has been worthwhile."

"Our original concept was for a facility that would provide not only housing, but also attendant care, with a common dining room. However, this was not to be, for this project. This is still a prime issue for Haliburton and hopefully in the near future, after the combut you're one of the better ones."

Greetings from the Minister of Housing Evelyn Gigantes and MPP Dennis Drainville were extended by Drainville's constituency assistant, Alice Dana. Funding and subsidies were provided under the Homes Now program, and the NDP believe affordable housing is a basic human need which provides contentment and security. Twenty-eight of the units have rents geared to income; 12 are at market value.

The dedication was led by four local ministers: Brian Plouffe, Gord Walsh, Rob Luxton and Stan Waterhouse, who all stressed that what makes a building into a home is the people.

The following are a few highlights of Shipley's speech.

"As we gather here and look at this structure, and know what it pletion of (Dysart's) sewage studies, it will become a reality."

"Our waiting list is still lengthy. These people are wanting their needs fulfilled and we as a community must accept the challenge of meeting these needs."

"Our work is not finished with this project, however, for we have already instigated plans for project number three. As soon as we know what can be done about the sewage problem — (no new units can be hooked up until the plant's capacity is expanded) — we are prepared to proceed with further housing, maybe in the form of townhouses for families, or that dream of an attendant care facility. We will persevere with diligence and patience as we await the opportunity to offer people a chance at contentment, security and dignity."

Well funds will be found

gave a ball-park figure for the cost of the new well and pumphouse Wednesday night of around $300,000. Such projects have been funded as much as 85 percent in the past by the Ministry of the Environment, but as that agency's Muskoka-Haliburton Area Supervisor said at the meeting, there is no guarantee that Minden's well will receive anything.

"Projects such as this are funded on a pro-rated basis," Terry Healy said. "A panel will decide what your project is worth and compare it to other ones in the province. The ones rated highest will get funded first and so on until there is nothing left."

But Reeve Bern Berry said the well has to be built with or without funding.

"If it has to be with debentures then it'll be with debentures — Minden cannot die," he said.

Cameron added that the cost of the well will be borne completely by those hooked to the water system. Properties not serviced will not have to pay.

Several residents at the meeting expressed concerns about chemicals added to the water but Lottimor assured them that the water quality passes provincial standards and only chlorine will be added to guard the water against contamination by an outside source.

He also assured the residents that a new type of screen would be used for the new well that would retain sand, gravel and mica.

Triton has finished its hydrological studies and its proposed well design but is still in the preliminary stages for planning construction. Council has not yet passed their proposal.

Dorset development criticized

Some people think plaza will pollute; consultant says it's safe a hair dresser, and a woodworking shop. The upper storey would contain four apartments.

Opposition to MacAllister's rezoning application has been mounting since information on the proposed zoning change was circulated to property owners within 400 feet of the subject lands. Last Tuesday, Sherborne et al council gave the community an opportunity to voice its concerns, and MacAllister a chance to respond to them.

The possibility of pollution from the development was a recurring theme in residents' presentations to council. Other concerns included traffic hazards, diminishing of adjacent property values, the possible closure of Harvey Avenue, and the long term impact on the business community of allowing commercial development on Highway 35 within the hamlet boundaries. As well, some area business owners were unhappy with the broad range of uses outlined in the rezoning proposal.

Brian Hughes, owner of Old Mill Marina on Kawagama Lake, said in a letter to council that other businesses operate under narrow zoning that accommodates specific uses, rather than a general commercial designation. As well, he said, other business have been refused the opportunity to create dwelling units in conjunction with their commercial enterprises. Hughes said he would immediately ly apply for similar zoning if MacAllister's application is approved.

Sherborne et al clerk Diane Griffin also read a letter from Brad Robinson, owner of Robinson's General Store, in which he argued that allowing commercial development on Highway 35 could result in the demise of the downtown core, as it has in other northern communities where strip development was permitted.

Other area residents who wrote in response to the proposed rezoning worried about pollution from the site, since the water table on the land is high, with additional spring runoff. As well, there were questions about the need for new businesses that would locate in MacAllister's building, and the possibility that some of them might fail, creating an unattractive appearance for travellers and visitors.

Jeff Avery, owner of Avery Audio Visual in the hamlet, said that while he is in favour of growth in Dorset, he is worried about the size of the development proposed by MacAllister, and its location on the Highway 35 corridor through Dorset. He cited Novar, Sprucedale and Port Sydney as examples of what can happen to a community if the focus of commercial development moves away from the existing downtown and onto a highway corridor. In each case, he said, businesses have failed and the communities have been diminished.

"We need to be very, very careful about development of this nature" Avery said.

The possibility that the septic system for MacAllister's development might pollute nearby wells and Trading Bay was on the minds of several Dorset residents who spoke at the meeting. Some called for an environmental impact study before any zoning change is approved for the property.

MacAllister was present at the meeting, but did not enter the debate, allowing Lehmann to speak on his behalf.

Lehmann began his response by noting that 75 percent of his company's work is acting on behalf of municipalities, including several in Haliburton County, and the balance is representing private developers. "We are not shills," Lehmann said. His company turns down many chances to work for developers, and only becomes involved in projects it believes will benefit the communities where they are proposed.

With respect to MacAllister's proposal, "it is important to separate fact from fantasy," Lehmann said. The District Health Unit, which administers septic system approvals and construction on behalf of the Ministry of the Environment, has approved the design of a bed for MacAllister's development. It would not be allowed to pollute any adjacent properties or water bodies, and provincial legislation states that if wells were polluted as a direct result of MacAllister's development, he would be required to provide new wells at no cost to the affected property owners. As for concerns about traffic flow, Ministry of Transport requirements have been met in the development proposal, Lehmann said.

On the drainage issue, Lehmann said the development will not be allowed to create any more runoff than existed before, and he suggested that runoff problems will in all likelihood be improved when the site is developed.

Questions about the viability of the development, and the competition it might create for other Dorset area business, are not within the mandate of councils to decide, Lehmann said, and the Ontario Municipal Board will not consider such concerns in ruling on the appropriateness of rezoning applications. Even so, Lehmann argued that MacAllister's development would benefit the community by providing more choice for consumers, increasing the tax base, and enticing more Highway 35 travellers to stop in Dorset.

Later, in an interview, MacAllister said he would do what he could to address the community's concerns, but is also prepared to take his application to an Ontario Municipal Board hearing if objections cannot be resolved at the local level.

On the issue of development on Highway 35 and its impact on existing local businesses, MacAllister said there is no land available in the downtown core for new commercial development.

"We don't really want to go head to head with the townspeople" who are already in business, MacAllister said. "I don't see us competing with downtown businesses." Instead, he says, his building will include services that are not presently available in the community. These could include a medical office and possibly a pharmacy that might operate on a part time basis.

"We can't stop growth. For sure, someone is going to do what I'm doing... Living here, we want the facilities."

Reeve Ross Rabjohn, who chaired last Tuesday's meeting, told the gathering that council would attempt to work with Lehmann and MacAllister to resolve the community's concerns, and might schedule another public meeting before ruling on the rezoning applications.

Trailer stolen in Cardiff; dog shot

Apsley O.P.P. advise that on March 23 they received a report of a theft of a house trailer from private property west of Harcourt off the Buxton Road. Police report that sometime since October 1, 1991, a 1973 Dutch house trailer had been parked on the property and was subsequently hitched up to a vehicle and driven away. The trailer is a single axle 16 foot white aluminum trailer. At the present time police have no suspects.

Value of the theft is estimated at $2,500.

On the 27th, Police responded to a report of a dog being shot in the vicinity of McGillivray road, south of Cardiff. Police learned the 8-year-old Collie dog had returned to its residence bleeding. The dog was treated for injuries caused by shotgun pellets. Investigation is continuing.

Healing power resonates through Native gathering

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

THE CENTURIES-OLD RHYTHMS were resonating through the Minden Cultural Centre as a group of Native Canadians gathered to describe what life is like for them today.

"It took a lot of time for (whites and Natives) to get to know each other (since Christopher Columbus's arrival in North America 500 years ago)," said Becky Big Canoe to the 40 people gathered in the crowded room Tuesday night. "I think we know a lot about you and now you can learn a lot more about us."

"Let's put away the hurt and anger and start building bridges. From the heart, the time has come to face up to the things that aren't so easy."

It was almost as if the hammers were pounding away at the first bridge as Big Canoe's husband, Sherman Butler, led two other drummers in a welcoming ceremony. Even though the beat was a repetitive boom, boom, boom, it never lost its power or attraction — but then how could you tire of the sound of a beating heart?

"Drums are the heartbeat of the First Nations people," said the evening's moderator, Sherman Lewis, who like many of the other Native representatives, is associated with the Curve Lake reserve north of Peterborough. They were invited to Minden by the local Community Enrichment Forum and the Kawartha 500 Committee to talk about the issues surrounding the anniversary of Columbus's epic journey. "Talking is better than solving problems in other ways such as Oka," Lewis said.

What followed were several testimonies and entreaties, spoken with anger and patience, felt with passion and resignation. The audience was there to learn and learn they did. Here are pieces of the various presentations.

Alice Williams

The Anishnaabe believe that when the Creator created the earth, he gave North America to the red people, Africa to the black people, the Far East to the yellow people and Europe to the white people. "We are told the Creator instructed us how to look after the earth, that she is our mother and gives us life."

When white people left their land for the Natives' land, "we shared and shared this land until we only lived in pockets called reserves, land the white people didn't want." Curve Lake reserve is on a peninsula, not good for crops. "When our forefathers signed the treaties, I want you to know our forefathers had guns to their heads. We were promised many things we didn't get."

"If a white man came to our reserve sick and struggling, there isn't a home in Curve Lake that wouldn't let him in and feed him, but if a Native walked down the streets of Peterborough, he wouldn't be treated the same way."

"We know that the Anishnaabe have survived cultural genocide and oppression, we've been deprived of our homeland and it isn't the black people who did it to us. So I don't want to hear any more about us sharing and us living in harmony because I think we've done our share and we continue to do our share."

"I want to tell the white man that in the 500 years he's been here, the land has been raped, our fish are dying, our waters are poisoned, we are unhealthy people, our food stinks. We live a lifestyle that's dedicated to other people making money."

Doug Williams

Natives share views

pressed anger at the province's interim policy which grants rights to Natives, he said a politician would swing towards the whites to get votes, even if he knew they were morally wrong — "sorry, guys."

"Columbus brought exploitation and aggressiveness. As a native person, I cannot accept a celebration of our destruction. We can commemorate it — it's the Americanization of the world. You (Canadians) have a problem too."

On the environment, Williams echoed his wife's entreaties to take better care of the planet and "Turtle Island", the Anishnaabe lands. "Because you tread on Turtle Island you've got a connection to this land — you can't go back to Europe and I guess we have to accept you," he laughed. "But don't ask me to do your healing for you."

And if it grinds you that we own this land and we are the founding people here, I think you've got a problem."

Pauline Terbasket

An Okanagan from British Columbia, Terbasket left her home and family to study at Trent University, with many nieces and nephews silently watching her to see if she succeeds in breaking away from many of the tribulations which afflict her people — suicide and problems with alcohol. Until recently, "there was no natural death in our community and you can imagine what that does to a community."

"I was born a politician. A Dene elder says when an Indian speaks they breath politics because of our history, because of our oppression. . . Indian is a colonial word and we're trying to shed it," she said before listing various tribes by their proper Native way. To encompass them all is the political term First Nations. "The majority of Canadians have not had to relate to us as humans because you are the dominant race and that's the reality. Self-government is not going to solve 'the Indian problem.'"

"What you are experiencing is white guilt and you have to deal with it yourselves. It's just as important for you to know your own roots and history if we are to communicate. This generation has a hell of a responsibility. It's overwhelming what we have to take care of."

As to the hunting issue, "if I try to tell my brothers, and the Ministry of Natural Resources tries to tell my brothers they can't hunt when my mother tells them there's no meat in the freezer, they won't acknowledge that. . . That really hurts — you're denying and not accepting the original people yet. (Not all Native hunters follow Native ways.) It's sad — there is a generation of people who have lost these ways and are suffering for it, so they hunt moose with fetuses. But yet when an Indian does it, you know, you know no one else can do no wrong. But white people exploit just as we learned to exploit. We can have a million scapegoats but it's only us who can be accountable. Our mother, our earth, our life-giver is suffering and we have to co-operate and learn to co-exist."

Sherman Butler

"I speak for myself and my family — that's my self government," said the talented Ojibway-Pettawatomi drummer, whose talk combined humour and a no-nonsense directness. "I'm not negotiating with Ottawa because we're doing this all wrong — we're asking for permission. Well, I don't need it, I don't want it. It's a question of me getting off my chair and doing it."

"You are my brothers and my sisters, that's what my Creator told me."

Like Terbasket, he said giving Natives rights to hunt and fish are not going to cause a mad rush to the lakes and forests. "We pose no threat because a lot of our people have lost (those skills or desires). If I need lumber, I go to Beaver Lumber. We're in today."

"About Columbus? To hell with him, let's celebrate 500 years of us, that we've managed to live this long without killing each other off. . . Every single one of us is a distinct society, even the media — they're the most distinct." As everyone laughed, including the media, Butler said that laughter is the best bridge between the two groups. "I'm trying to teach you how we can heal ourselves."

NATIVE LESSON: Curve Lake First Nations Reserve Chief Mel Jacob fields questions from Georgina Boyle's Grade 7 history class at J.D. Hodgson Elementary School Friday afternoon.

Native stereotypes take the back seat

by MARK PUBLICOVER

Staff Reporter

They say people learn from experience and Georgina Boyle's Grade 7 history classes got that and more last week as they learned about the present day concerns of Canada's native people — first hand.

Chief Mel Jacob and Councillor Elmer Whetung of the Curve Lake First Nations Reserve visited J. D. Hodgson Elementary School on Friday to answer the many questions that the keen Grade 7s had about natives and their culture.

War. Hunting rights. Taxes. Crafts. There were enough questions to fill the class and more.

"We really learned about what it's like for them and that most of what we hear about Natives is a bunch of lies," one student said after the class.

What they learned is that life on a reserve isn't a whole lot different that life right here in Haliburton. There are houses and streetlights. Kids go to school, parents go to work and families have pets.

"If you took away the Curve Lake sign and the craft shop, when you went through you probably wouldn't know you're on a reserve," he said.

Curve Lake (just outside of Buckhorn), he said, is very small — only three square miles. "There are more trees here than we have on our reserve."

Hunting rights have always been a contentious issue among Haliburton's adults and that showed as the students had plenty of questions for their visitors on that issue.

"Many adults are angry that we're able to hunt whenever and wherever we choose," Jacob said. "They get angry and they get emotional but we have the right and we do our darndest to make sure we don't hurt conservation efforts." Natives, he said, have traditionally depended on the land for their livelihood and they know how to respect it.

Throughout the afternoon, Jacob addressed many stereotypical questions about Natives. By asking the questions, the students learned that the stereotypes are just that.

Natives don't use birch bark canoes anymore because aluminum ones work better, Jacob said. The "arts and crafts" that many people associate natives with are simply things they've used in their everyday lives for centuries. And native reserves, he said, are not all slums.

"I've been all over Canada and I've seen some reserves that I could not live on. When I look at some of the places other Canadians live, it shocks me. They're not just reserves, though, because there are many places in the cities which are just as bad as the poorest reserves."

Small schools may be given a bigger role

by MARK PUBLICOVER

Staff Reporter

Small schools may be making a comeback.

At last Tuesday's regular meeting, the school board announced it would consider expanding its outlying elementary schools in Dorset, Wilberforce and Gooderham if the majority of parents in those areas support the idea.

"Our trustees will be seeking the opinion of the parents in these areas over the next month or so," Director Brad Saunders said. "We want to ensure that our schools with relatively small enrolments remain viable."

A few years ago, the Dorset school was in danger of being closed because it was felt there was an insufficient number of students.

"If the majority of parents are in favour of it, we're looking at putting enough students in these schools to render them immune to closure when times get tough," Saunders said.

He said informal conversations with Dorset parents indicate that there may be sufficient support in that area.

All three schools could eventually house students from junior kindergarten to Grade 6, he said, but there would be no need to expand the schools. The Wilberforce school, for example, has four classrooms so junior and senior kindergarten could be taught in one room, Grades 1 and 2 in another, 3 and 4 in another and 5 and 6 also together.

Wilberforce Elementary School currently has 52 students in kindergarten to Grade 4, Gooderham has 41 students in the same grades and Dorset has 18 students in kindergarten to Grade 3 with 23 students expected to be enrolled next year.

Time for healing

Guilt is a useless emotion. Remorse, shame, sorrow, anger, contriteness — these are emotions you can work with. Guilt only provides enough of a semblance of pain to make you feel you're paying for your past indiscretions and wrongdoings. Perhaps that's why so many people are bathing in what's known as "white guilt." The sins of the world are being bravely taken upon the shoulders of the white, North American, liberal, middle class, and oh, that pain feels so good. So cleansing. So redemptive.

But it's still pretty useless.

As the group of Natives at Tuesday's Community Enrichment Forum in Minden eloquently pointed out, our past treatment of Natives has been horrendous. We have ignored their collective wisdom, wiped them out with our diseases, poisoned their earth and then asked them why they were starting to complain. We have been racist when we thought we were being tolerant, thieves when we thought we were giving them the promise of a better life yet to come. In imposing our culture and beliefs upon them, we forgot that a civilization which had existed for centuries probably had a lot to teach us. All of us are suffering for it today as the earth and its resources reach the breaking point from our stupidity.

Nothing we can do or say today will negate the horrible and ignorant abuses of the past. And if it is time for apology, it is also time to ask who that "we" is. Are white people today responsible for what happened when Christopher Columbus spied our shores 500 years ago? Are we the ones who took advantage of the Natives' generosity? Surely we are the benefactors, but we are not necessarily the perpetrators. It's by our actions today we will be judged, and guilt is only the easy replacement. If people want to make amends for the past, then it is in the present they must concentrate, not repeating the same mistakes and opening their minds to what Natives are saying. Poll after poll says we are now more willing than ever to accept them as human beings. It might have taken 500 years, but at least we've finally arrived at that understanding.

Much is being said today about giving Natives special hunting and fishing rights. Who was protesting when the Natives' right to gather sustenance from their lands was taken away? Who invented the weapons that they are now not supposed to use? Who said you must lose your Natives ways but we will not accept you into white society? So many of the white protests today seem so hollow, like the cries of a child who is being forced to give back the toy he has stolen. People are ready to cry "Injustice!" before they are willing to hear the views of the other side. They must learn to speak out against all abuses against nature, whether by Natives or whites. As one of the women said Tuesday, whites are good at lashing out against Natives' folly but they are silent when the crime is committed by one of their own tribe. We see enough evidence of that in the furor over Algonquin Park.

Natives are justified in not wanting to "celebrate" the arrival of a man who opened the door to their destruction. But perhaps they can join us in acknowledging the positive aspects of European cultures. We can now study Greek philosophy, listen to the pure notes of Bach, share Charles Dickens' anger at the exploitation of our land and people, watch a Canadian travel to space, find spiritual peace in faith, explore our natural universe with Jacques Cousteau and Haliburton County's R.D. Lawrence, and broaden our intellectual horizons by debating the merits of Christopher Columbus's epoch-making journey. We do not need to denigrate and deny white or European culture to give Native culture the stature it so rightly deserves. Instead, the good sides of both should be emulated, and the bad sides of both should be censured. It's not time to go back to us versus them.

Couldn't have said it better

TO THE EDITOR

FROM OUR READERS

To the Editor:

The March 24th paper contained two letters of rebuttal to Stacey Williams. The one by Jon Hicks was very good, but the one by Keith W. Stata of Kinnmount, I thought, was so well written, and so comprehensive, explaining why our country is in such a mess, that I cut it out to show to friends and relations in other areas who wouldn't otherwise see this letter.

My congratulations to Keith for this letter. I couldn't have said it better.

Brothels for Bibles?

To the Editor:

I am pleased to hear that MPP Dennis Drainville is hosting public forums throughout the area. I have a question perhaps he could answer.

As we are aware that Bob Rae has taken the Lord's Prayer out of the schools, the Bible out of the Court Rooms, and is now going to set up Casinos. I was wondering when and where he would set up the Brothels?

Seems to me if he wants to raise money that might be his answer.

A man to be missed

To the Editor:

My copy of the March 24 Haliburton County Echo arrived in my mail box today.
Your compassionate story of the late Bob

McCausland highlighted page one and softened the "jolt" of his passing with its headline.

As a long-time seasonal resident of Glamorgan Township on Stormy Lake, I had known Bob McCausland as a Community Man — a business person and more importantly as a family father!

He was first rate in all avenues: his fun-loving attitude at community events with his wife and family; his solid commitment to his official political duties both as a first-time councillor and then his years as head of a "striving" township, capped off by his peers entrusting him with the county's highest office, Warden!

In his business life here too he was as honest. When he measured out a pound of building nails, you got full measure!

For all of us seasonal residents of Glamorgan, as well as the rest of the county, Bob McCausland will be missed.

Insights of editorial are appreciated

To the Editor:

Congratulations for Len Pizze's splendid editorial "Co-operation and Compromise" (March 10/92). In my opinion, yours was a balanced assessment of changes as they currently impact among the various educational roles: students, teachers, administrators, trustees and the larger community.

Of particular merit is the sentiment of your final summary paragraph were "feelings" factor in consensual decision-making. Perhaps those who missed this fine piece of newspaper journalism might do well to search it out, read and reflect.

We are grateful for your insight; and again, commend you for balance, clarity and perceptive analysis.

Lochlin.

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO local observers were quoted in this paper on two or three occasions, suggesting that some businesses in the village of Haliburton might not survive the winter. Last week were started into spring and to my knowledge not a single business went into bankruptcy during this time. It's very easy these days to be down in the mouth and give out with those gloom and doom signals but on the positive side of things it's good to know that all these businesses are still doing business in the same old stand. Now let's welcome summer with optimism and a healthy new outlook as our visitors prepare to come back and enjoy the hospitality of the Highlands of Haliburton.

While attending a hockey game at the arena in Haliburton one night last week I couldn't help but feel proud of the many great hockey teams that have skated up and down the ice surface in this famous ice palace. If nothing else, there's one thing we know how to do in Haliburton and that's the art of playing hockey. I think I counted a total of 22 banners hanging in the arena, each one saluting a championship team. The one side of the arena is lined with banners and I can see that they are starting now to hang them up on the other side.

The village of Haliburton will be the place to be on Sunday, April 5 when Minden-Victoria Shotokan Karate will be hosting the Junior Grand Prix Karate at the Haliburton Highland Secondary School beginning at 10:00 a.m. We understand that about 400 people on this day will be competing for a chance to get on the National Team. It is being presented by Karate Ontario.

We are sorry to report that Sylvia Holland of The Village Shoppe has her left leg in cast. She has been sidelined with torn ligaments in her leg due to an unfortunate skiing accident. Sylvia told me that she thinks it's about time to give up skiing as she injured her other leg in a similar accident a year ago. We hope that she will soon be back on the road to recovery.

I understand that Earl Cooper of West Guilford joined the 65 year old club on Friday and joins me now in the twilight years. Earl was sick on his birthday and lets hope this isn't an indication of what being a senior citizen is all about.

When it comes to hockey, the village of Haliburton is well known for producing winners. This year has been no exception with yet another championship team. Congratulations to the OMHA Novice "C-DD" Zone Champions who wrapped up the championship recently when they took two of three games on a weekend of hockey with the Brighton Braves to win the best of seven series four games to two. Congratulations also go out to another winning team, the Haliburton Huskies Mites, who recently won the Tri-County Championship with a great victory over Ops. Honourable mention also should go to the Haliburton Tri-County Novice C Huskies who lost a heart breaker at the arena in Haliburton when they were nosed out by the close score of 5-4 by the team from Sunderland. The teams split the first two games and the deciding game was played on Wednesday night.

I have been asked to announce that the Sunday Supper Club will hold it's monthly dinner meeting at the West Guilford Community Centre this coming Sunday, April 5 starting at 3:00 p.m. This is your opportunity to enjoy a real good meal and join your friends in an afternoon of friendship.

Here and there . . . Congratulations to Harold Andrews of Maple Lake who celebrated his 68th birthday on Saturday . . . Marshall and Helen Leighton have returned home following a winter vacation in the sunny south . . . Happy Birthday to Briar Conebears of Haliburton who celebrated the occasion last Wednesday . . . Marvin and Lorraine Varty returned home last week following a vacation in the United States . . . Dennis and Martha Sims returned home recently following a vacation in Florida . . . Rick and Nada Vaughan and family of Toronto renewed old acquaintances in Haliburton during the March Break . . . We are glad to report that Allan Bull of Haliburton is up and around again and was able to return home following a months stay in St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough, Ontario . . . Grant and Norma Jean Scheffee were visitors to Peterborough last Wednesday . . . Nancy Brink celebrated her 50th birthday one day last week . . . Lon Duncombe and his son of Haliburton returned home last week following a vacation in Russia . . . Art Dawson of Haliburton celebrated his 40th birthday on Friday. Happy Birthday Art . . . Congratulations to Bob and Ellen Fyfe who celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary recently.

The perils of public comment

THROUGH THE PERISCOPE

MARTHA PERKINS

POOOR STACEY WILLIAMS. She didn't realize she had touched a raw nerve when she wrote a letter to the editor two weeks ago. Her intention was to put forward the argument that in a village where there is no public (therefore affordable) transportation, taxi rates should be kept as low as possible. That is a valid point, and one that is important to make to those with cars, people who tend to forget that life is the Highlands is next to impossible without a vehicle.

Problem is, Ms. Williams then went on — in the eyes of many — to bite the hand that feeds her. Council's decision on whether to introduce meters in taxis — a decision that has yet to be made — has nothing to do with the conditions of sidewalks and roads. And it's not polite for someone apparently without a job to criticize the work ethics of those who are serving on her behalf. It's even more ill-advised when many of the taxpayers footing the bills are having their own problems keeping their heads above water.

When Keith Stata of Kinmount phoned me to say he was sending last week's rebuttal to Ms. Williams' tone, he told a story of his college days, when he had to hawk a possession in order to buy a loaf of bread to get him through the week. It was a time of great hardship, with no government programs to bail him out, and it shaped the way he views the struggle against poverty today. He believes no one in a caring society should starve, but he wondered how to provide money to those who truly need it without fostering a society which expects such assistance as their due. After sharpening his hunger to succeed during those lean days in Toronto, Mr. Stata is now a successful businessman, partly because he works hard at it, and partly because he used his wiles to come up with Highlands Cinema, a professional movie theatre attached to his house.

Editors always welcome letters to the editor. It shows people are actually reading the newspaper, and care about what they read. But I was cautious. My advice to Mr. Stata — advice that would limit the number of harsh words I'd have to edit out — was not to make the letter personal. Say that you disagree with Ms. Williams and then why, without making it an attack on the person.

That's something I told the Grade 7 students I visited after they wrote a letter in reaction to one of my columns about their school. They were a bit surprised that I was glad they wrote — they thought I wouldn't print their letter because it was critical of my viewpoints. But disagreements are perfectly normal, as well as the acceptance that neither side has a monopoly on "the truth." Both points can be valid, both can be worth considering, both can be worth having.

The main rule we follow at the Echo is not to provide a public forum to say "I disagree with you; because I am right, you are a snivelling idiot." It's not a cop out; it's just civil. You don't strengthen your argument by tearing down your opponent.

Newspapers can never abdicate responsibility for the words that appear in their pages, whether they're written by staff, advertisers or the public. It doesn't matter whether we agree or not with what's being said; if we print libellous words spoken by someone else, we too can be sued for libel.

This week I received a phone call from a man who suggested the paper have a Sound Off Section (S.O.S.). People could write down their beefs without fear of being edited; perhaps they'd be willing to pay for their soap box. I said you can't write "My neighbour so-and-so is a boorish brute who plays loud music at night", but you can write "It's important for people to realize their neighbours might not share the same taste in music."

That doesn't mean there can't be criticism. (One of the defences in libel suits is "was this statement true?") Politicians are fair game because of the nature of their role. People paid by the public purse also must withstand greater scrutiny. My own personal rule when editing a letter is "would I like this to be said about me?" As Stacey Williams found out, if you want to be able to criticize others, be prepared to have others criticize you.

A TRIBUTE: When I was growing up, the radio in the kitchen was broken. Whether it was broken intentionally by parents who had already experienced too much of teenagers' choices in music, or an act of divine intervention, the dial was stuck at Radio 740, CBC Toronto. So when it came time to do the dishes, As it Happens gave you something to take your mind off the daily chore.

For 11 years, the host was Barbara Frum, who died last week of leukemia. Evening after evening, I heard her voice. I heard her questions, I heard her try to make sense of the day's events. At no time did I say "I want to be a journalist like Barbara Frum" but I think she did quietly influence my decision to take journalism at Ryerson. Without making it into a feminist statement, Mrs. Frum proved that a woman's voice could be just as authoritative as a man's, and that people of both sexes were willing to listen to it for an hour and a half each night. She was a subconscious role model, opening those invisible doors to other women. By changing the face of broadcasting, she also changed a generation of young women's options for the future.

PIC OF THE PAST

This photo of Florence Roberts was taken at her home in Haliburton circa 1951. She is seen here talking to a young friend. Bill Davis, who grew up in the village and was recently the Reeve of Dysart et al. Florence was the daughter of James and Hannah Roberts who moved their family from Renfrew County to Haliburton in 1868, when Florence was a baby. "Curly Bill" was the oldest of the family. Tom and James, Archibald and Isaac were born in Haliburton. Florence married Joe Roberts (not related) and together they raised a family of six: Ernie, Lee, Violet, Walter, Alvin and Jack. The last of their children, Jack, died in November 1991 which was 123 years after Florence's family made that difficult trip to Harburn where they cleared their farm and settled down to a new life. The measure of a man...

CITY SLICKER

DAVID CARROLL

PINE POINT, KENNISIS LAKE: Please note, all names have been changed to prevent further embarrassment.

That said, the fellow I want to profile this week is Vince. Unfortunate name, Vince, but that's not his problem. Nor is his problem and physical one. See, Vince is burly as a Redwood, a real football hero, with short cropped hair, chiselled jawline, wind-burnt cheeks and ivory teeth. He's pretty but he's huge. Nobody makes fun of his name.

What does Vince do, you ask? Why, he cuts down trees! Pulls trunks from the dirt, sells firewood, hauls landfill, does other jobs too. He owns his own truck and his own company. Vince Wilhelm Inc. And did I mention that he's a nice guy? No joke. Charges no GST because he thinks it's immoral. Absorbs the tax himself, stubborn guy. Offers reasonable rates too, according to my Dad. Plus, he gives free estimates, slices fallen trees into firewood, and never starts a chainsaw before 7 a.m. For these and other reasons, my Dad says, nobody dickers with Vince. And who would dare? At six-feet-three and 200 pounds, why, he could fell a tree onto your cottage if he wanted. He never would, mind you, he's such a swell guy.

I'm told that Vince does other jobs as well: plumbing, septic beds, deck construction, saving cats from trees. But those are sidelines; he prefers to stick to trees and it shows. He's hot chainsaw burns all down his arms and a scar on his forehead where a spruce branch knocked him cold. Make no mistake, this is a man we're talking about. He was raised in West Guilford and learned to drive motorbikes before most kids his age mastered tricycles. He played defense for several backwater hockey clubs, and picked up a reputation for being a scrappy player, getting into fights and perpetually winning. His teammates nicknamed him Thor, after the Norse God of Thunder. Vince still blanches at the thought. But now he's grown up. A backwater man who drinks black coffee, uses finishing nails for toothpicks, listens to country and western music.

When I asked him what was his toughest job ever, he spoke of the time a beaver built a dam under the third bridge. "I waded through that cold water to drag out all the logs he'd stacked," he said. "Took eight hours. The next day I went back to check, but that rodent had built it up again. That beaver was even more stubborn than me."

Vince lives on the lake. He inherited a lot from his grandad who was an original trapper here. He's still a bachelor, though probably not for long. "You know how stubborn he can be," says his longtime girlfriend, Jenny Spragge. "But he'll come around. I just wish he weren't so stressed all the time."

What's this? The latter day Paul Bunyan gets stressed? This scruff jawed Adonis, this Gentle Giant gets stressed?

Apparently so, for every night he has nightmares, every night he grinds his teeth to pancake mix. But why, I asked him? What obscure worries does a treecutter face? The greenhouse effect? Environmental reactionaries?

"I can't swim," he revealed. "I go through this every spring before the ice goes out."

I was astounded. It had never occurred to me that Vince, the Platonic ideal of a man, could be afraid of water. I mean, he's such a man, such a He Man, such a man's man, ladies man. How, I wondered, could he be afraid of water? Why, he lives and works beside a lake for God's sake! But then I remembered the time my Dad had a strained back and asked Vince to drop his mooring for him. Vince had politely declined. And now I knew why. Now it made sense.

It's called Hydrophobia, and although it's a simple phobia, usually learned in childhood and overcome as an adult, to some folks it can be crippling.

"You should learn how to swim," I said, to which Vince nodded sheepishly. "Hey," I said, "my brother has his lifesaving badges, he's a certified lifeguard. He's in Ottawa now, but when he gets back, why don't I send him over?" Vince shook his head grimly. It was obvious that he had no desire to learn. The fear ran too deep. Too bad. I was hoping to swing some free electrical work out of the deal. Oh, did I fail to mention that Vince is also an amateur electrician? Hasn't got his papers, but man, he's got nerve!

"My brother's the best," I promised. "He could teach a kitten to swim." But Vince clutching his coffee cup as though for dear life, did not seem convinced.

"C'mon Vince!" I said. "You're more than ninety-nine percent water yourself. There's no reason not to learn. All you need is someone to twist your arm!"

For a moment I saw a hint of a smile; his rigid, tight-lipped, chapstick smile. But then it had vanished and still he did not consent.

"Do this," I threatened. "Or I'll give you a scandalous write-up in the Echo."

"You wouldn't dare," he said.

Taking a different sort of trip

IT'S BEEN SOME THREE MONTHS since we reported about life "on the road," and part of that is because this year it isn't the same sort of "trip" we experienced last year, when we circumnavigated the U.S. to Oregon and California, then back to Florida and home...

This year has been tamer, squatting for longer periods in interesting parts of Texas, then squinting across Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, to the Florida panhandle. We visited friends from Haliburton and Norland at Panama City Beach, then traced the coastline into the northwestern corner of the state to see the Suwanee River...

Most recently we have sort of settled on the shores of Lake Okeechobee where we spent a few weeks last year. I never would have thought I'd be able to stay put in one place for so long.

But then I had never found an inexpensive park in Florida where you could sit close enough to the water to have the windows of your motorhome splashed by waves on windy days. And fresh water doesn't have the same rust factor that salt water does...

We are close to the West Palm Beach area, and were visited by the "Maple Lane" Allens from Haliburton — which led to a lot of trips to flea markets and antique shows in this area...

It also means it is an easy run for us to visit Bud Davies, who worked with me at CKEY in Toronto, where he "owned" the ratings from 7 to midnight for many years. He still works an evening shift on an "oldies" station in the Palm Beach area...

We both share a love for the Big Band era, but I think it shocked him a little to find that I have developed a strong interest in country music over the past ten years. I saw Gary Morris in Texas earlier, but Florida is big on country, too.

These days, the names of country artists are probably more familiar to many Haliburton readers than the big bands of the past, (and I don't mean the Hurons and the Iroquois).

Sawyer Brown and Joe Diffie each were number one on the charts the week I saw them perform, and it was great to see Larry Gatlin and the Gatlin Brothers on their Farewell tour. I also enjoyed a couple of fine honky-tonk performers who haven't had a hit for a while — Mel McDaniel, and Earl Thomas Conley.

Needless to say, while the local paper carries a page of Canadian wire service news nearly every day, the biggest attention our country got was when the PA announcer who has broadcast Montreal Expo spring training games in the stadium here since 1984 was canned because he couldn't speak French!

While stadium officials concede that only 2 to 3 percent of the fans in the stands are French — with more than half usually there to see the Mets or some other team the Expos are playing — it was a demand by the team, who are threatening to move away when their contract with the city runs out.

All announcements are in French first, then English, and it has had thorough local news coverage, plus a lot of space in the Letters to the Editor columns of the local paper. The word that turns up most is "arrogance." Reading about their dismay kind of made us feel at home...

Canadians down here are too upset with OHIP to even enjoy the extension of the "French Language Crisis" to Florida. It seems kidney dialysis patients, who had been assured they had no problem visiting here, found that the government had pulled the plug on them — retroactive to October 1st!

And pensioners, like a neighbor here in camp when we arrived, who skins by on his second world war army pension by staying in a trailer park near Alliston during the summer and tenting here through the winter — won't be too pleased with the attitude of the bureaucrats at OHIP.

A Dr. McMillan has warned that you may be a Canadian citizen and have paid taxes all your life, or serve in our armed forces — but you'd better be prepared to prove you are a "resident" of Ontario by his definition to have them pay any of your medical costs down here...

Maybe the Legion should step in and see to it that the NDP at least pays attention to the needs of our veterans...

Virus has a clean streak

NORTHERN LIGHTS

VIRGINIA MUENZEL

SOME KIND OF RARE VIRUS has invaded our household. Ed has had to take a week off work to deal with it, and I'm definitely contagious. The last time I had a bug this bad was about a week before David was born, and we're pretty sure he's the one who brought the germ into the house this time.

There I go picking on the baby of the family again. Poor Dave. He takes an awful beating. But, I'm kidding him because the germ he brought us was the cleaning bug. You see, while we were down in Toronto pampering ourselves, Dave attacked our carpeting with a rug shampoo machine. (It seems everyone but me knew of his plans.) When we arrived home, I wondered why the furniture was out of place until I read his note. The carpeting looked great, but he left the germs every where.

We're both terribly ill. Ed's first symptom was a cupboard building compulsion which coincided with my "Where am I going to put this yarn?" panic. Then we both broke out in a painting frenzy, accompanied by an insatiable urge to move things that haven't budged in years. (I think this phase of the disease is called grunge gathering.) Gallons of paint have been purchased. This rather expensive complication of the disease has Ed looking around frantically for other rooms to paint.

OMHA Bantams have backs against the wall

It's not over until it's officially over, but really, it's pretty much over for Haliburton's OMHA Bantams.

Their bid for a second straight All-Ontario title hit a snag this month in the form of the Langton Bantams, who have had a little help from Lady Luck to take a commanding 7-1 lead in the eight-point series.

Haliburton visited the southern-

Ontario town last weekend and actually led both games there but wound up on the short end of close 4-3 and 3-2 scores.

Saturday's game was fast-paced from the opening face-off with great speed and good two-way play. Langton opened the scoring but Jonathan Bishop tied it up on a close-in play after being set up by Tim Keefer and Kevin Morissette. Four minutes later, captain Bishop put the Huskies in the lead as he slammed home a nice pass from Mark Stamp.

Langton evened it up again with the only goal of the second and went ahead a minute into the third. But Haliburton never stopped skating and controlled the play for much of the final frame. Their hard work paid off as Michael Hartwick slid the puck to Tim Keefer, who

April showers bring the Glen Dart classic

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

AFTER MAKING HIS WAY across the crowded, smoky arena lobby, the sweaty young hockey player proudly lifts up his trophy to show his father.

Smiling, the father pats his son on the head and thinks back to the day when he, too, received a trophy for competing in the very same tournament many years ago.

This scenario will likely be repeated once again this weekend as Haliburton's six Tri-County hockey league teams compete in the 40th Annual Glen Dart Hockey Tournament on Saturday at the Dysart Arena.

"The stands were absolutely packed in the early days of the tournament and many young fans actually couldn't get in the door to watch their favorite players," The Echo's Chreighton Feir says, recalling the days when the event was staged on natural ice in the old wooden arena.

"It may not be as popular as in the past, but many young players still look forward to taking part."

Over 100 players will take part in the one-day event this year, which begins at 10 a.m. with Haliburton's Mighty Mites taking on a team from Ennismore. Each of Haliburton's other five Tri-County teams will face-off for a game before the tournament is wrapped up around supper time.

A standout forward for the Haliburton Huskies in the 1940s, Glen Dart was very much involved in the community and served as the town's recreation director for a number of years before his premature death in 1950. The very next year, the soon-to-be-classic tournament was started and thousands of young hockey players from around central Ontario are now familiar with the name Glen Dart.

As Feir points out, many of those players have gone on to bigger and better things, such as major junior hockey and even the NHL.

Playing in the NHL is undoubtedly a thrill, but for many young boys and girls this weekend, just competing in the Glen Dart classic will provide a surprisingly similar experience.

Playoff hockey is always thrilling to watch and the Wilberforce Oldtimers didn't disappoint the fans. Many a spectator will have a sore butt from sitting on the edge of their seat. But before we get to the results, a special thank-you goes out to referees Mike Hughes and Jason Main, Timekeeper Don Rowbottom and League President Blaine Lewis for their fine work during the season.

Game one was for the 'A' Championship between the Haliburton Hawks and Bancroft Canadian Tire. C.T.C. knew they had a big obstacle to overcome as the Hawks lost only one game all season. C.T.C. opened the scoring on a goal by John Dyck and kept the Hawks off of the score sheet until late in the first when Steve Roberts finally beat substitute goalie Blaine Lewis.

This started the Hawks' scoring onslaught with goals going to tom-

HOCKEY MOMS: These hockey moms did more than just watch last Saturday morning as they took to the ice to face the Mighty Mites. Apparently fed up with being bossed around, the little Huskies took it to their moms and eeked out a 5-4 win.

Mites show moms who's boss in exhibition game

Saturday morning at the Dysart Community Centre the battle of the ages was on. For the Mite Mothers it was a chance to be in the limelight; for their boys it was payback time (pick up your toys, go to bed, eat your vegetables!) Checking out the mothers in the pre-game warmup the Mite coaches noticed they had brought in some ringers, Lisa Anderson, Dustin Boughner and the Pockett sisters, Linda and Shelley. It was only fair that the Mites sneak Alex Judge (Nick's brother) into the line up. Referee Jim Winn warned the moms that any rough stuff would not be tolerated.

The mothers started strongly and after demonstrating a beautiful swan dive, Barb Winn got up and blasted one in to open the scoring. Ginny Fick got the assist. The Huskie Mites answered back with a goal by Andre Nichol, assisted by Andrew Dawson. With nine seconds left in the first period, Cindy Boughner and Ginny Fick set up Dustin Boughner who ripped one in to put the mothers on top again.

The Huskie Mites came out storming in the second and Shawn MacInnes hit twice to five the boys the lead. Assisting on the goals were Josh Fick, Adrian Winn, Nick Judge and the Ref. (kick pass). Being behind frustrated the mothers and consequently their chippiness cost them as Anna Nichol drew a minor for roughing and Julie MacInnes nailed for too many women on the ice and for trying to instigate a fight. Shawn kept his cool and didn't retaliate. The mothers held off the Mites power play with some great defensive work and Julie MacInnes jumped out of the penalty box and scored on a nice passing play from Aggie Tose and Anna Nichol.

The Mites took the lead again on a breakaway goal by Andre Nichol assisted by Kyle Espie and Adrian Winn. But not to be outdone the moms struck back when Barb Winn fed Shelley Pockett, who drained it to tie it up once more.

With one and a half minutes remaining in the game the young lads would go ahead for good on a goal by Shawn MacInnes assisted by Kyle Boughner and Danny Craig.

A fun game was had by all and the Huskies had whipped their mothers 5-4 but would later admit that the women were the stiffest competition they had faced all year. Oh well guys, Kraft Dinner ain't so bad!

Skotokan Karate set to invade high school

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

Hundreds of young martial artists will invade the Highlands this weekend to take part in a junior grand prix Shotokan Karate tournament at the HHSS gymnasium on Sunday.

It will be the first-ever event hosted by the Minden-Victoria Shotokan Karate Club, featuring competitors up to age 17 vying for points that enable them to advance to provincial and national team competition.

Shotokan Karate is the Japanese style of the martial art and Minden instructor Roland Abrahms, a black belt, has watched the sport's popularity grow steadily since he opened the Minden club in July, 1990.

"It's part sport, part art and part life," he told The Echo. "By learning Shotokan Karate, the kids are learning discipline and respect."

Abrahms has 55 regular students at the Minden club, he opened a club in Norland in November and is planning to open clubs in Lindsay and Kirkfield next month.

He said dozens of his students will be among more than 200 competing Sunday, and two — Ryan Ladurantaye and Mark MacKinnon — have a chance at advancing to the national team by placing first or second here and at the next meet in Newmarket.

Sunday's action begins at 10 a.m.

Apsley, Ponders take titles as season comes to close

Curry, Derrell Stamp, Roberts with his second and then two from Rick Wood to make the final 6-1. Haliburton skated off with the 'A' trophy but this game was much closer than the score indicated.

Talk about close, the battle for the 'B' Championship between the Wilberforce Golden Ponders and Bancroft I.G.A. couldn't have been any closer. I.G.A. opened the scoring on a power play goal from Bill Green but with less than two minutes left in the first, the Ponders evened it up on a goal by Ralph Gould.

The Ponders jumped into the lead in the second as Ken Ablett scored and then Ralph Gould got what would be the winner with just four minutes left. I.G.A. pulled their goalie in the last minute and came close but it ended 3-2 for the Ponders. Netminders Blaine Lewis and Rob Parks played strong games facing many shots to keep the score low.

The battle for the 'C' championship was another tight one between Apsley and Rainbow Auto Glass. Apsley could have had to forfeit because they used a couple of ringers who may or may not have altered the outcome of the game. Apsley got the only market in the first as Mel MacDonald knocked one in but Rainbow jumped into the lead in the second as Paul Ellis and then Steve Huzarik found the net.

With just two seconds left, John Grady popped one in to go to the third tied at two. Apsley then got two in a row, one from Ken Ablett and another from John Grady with his second. Rainbow responded with one by Bruce Fleck but it was not enough as Apsley squeaked by, 4-3.

Good goaltending again in this game by Phil Rusaw and Rob Parks in his second game of the night. Apsley wins the 'C' division in a game which could have been protested, but the Rainbow squad has a bunch of fun-loving guys who were happy (believe it or not) to see Apsley leave with the big trophy.

Just think in only seven months we get to do it all over again — have a good summer.

T-C Novices drop series with 5-4 loss

Haliburton's Tri-County Novice 'C' Huskies couldn't have come much closer.

In fact, if they had of, they would have won.

The team dropped a close 5-4 decision last Wednesday to fall to Sunderland two games to one in the championship series at the Dysart Arena.

Christopher Bishop paced Haliburton with two goals while Travis Bain and Ryan Emmerson also scored. Assists went to Bain and Joel Cooper.

Cleaning virus does its dirty work

Meanwhile, I've been wandering around the house attacking small corners with a toothbrush, and all those wood surfaces with Murphy's Oil Soap. All those glass shelves, plate rails and cabinets full of family mementos, knick knacks, and those chicken things people keep giving me are clean, clean, clean!

It's unheard of! It's spring and I'm cleaning. Not my usual spurts and starts which generally give way to gazing longingly out the window after an hour or so. I actually finished one room in one day. Ed has only two rooms left to paint. He's even one cupboard up on me. I can't decide what to put in it.

The virus still has a firm grasp on us. It's becoming apparent that if it runs its course, the entire Muenzel household could end up being clean at one time. This would be a first. My scrubbing spurts are always so disorganized that by the time I get through the whole house, seasons have passed, and it's necessary to begin again. Ed has such a bad case, it's entirely possible that he could actually finish installing the last of the moulding and framing he began working on three (or was it four?) years ago.

I hope we can handle it. We've never lived in an immaculate house before. I'll feel guilty about spreading paperwork around the table. The cats will have to learn to wipe their paws.

Of course, we'll have to have company. Just to verify that we've accomplished this feat. Hopefully, we won't become so uptight about the place that we follow our friends around with whisk brooms and crumb catchers.

Is there some kind of antibiotic we can take? Will our symptoms taper off before we start hanging curtains in the coops? And didn't that terrible kid we raised turn out to be a nice young man?

Jr. football Redmen honoured
CIAU coach-of-the-year addresses COSSA champs

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

Champion.
The word says volumes and the members of HHSS's COSSA title-winning junior Redmen football team learned just what it means to be a champion at an appreciation dinner held in their honour at the Haliburton Legion last Tuesday night.

"People who are champions aren't just champions for a day," said guest speaker Rich Newborough, head coach of the Wilfrid Laurier University football team and 1991 CIAU coach of the year. "They're champions 24 hours a day, every day."

Champions, he said, affect their environment in a positive way. If a champion, for example, sees a piece of garbage on the floor when he or she walks down the hall, they pick it up and put it in its proper place.

Almost 130 people showed up to honour the 41 players who made up a team that went 8-0 last year, beating schools three times their size to capture HHSS's second ever COSSA championship.

But Newborough warned them that being champions will make it harder next year.

"You went 8-0 this year and have this banquet because of it," he said. "If you went 0-8, you'd have no banquet and you'd have no meal. Fenelon Falls and LCVI have no meal and they're hungry — they'll be hungry for you next year."

Under head coach Gary Brohman, who celebrated his 20th year at the HHSS football helm last season, the junior and senior Redmen teams have enjoyed unparalleled success for a school their size. Senior Redmen teams have won five Kawartha league and two Kawartha West regional titles since 1974 and the juniors have picked up five league, three regional and two COSSA championships over the past nine years.

"We've had the benefit of a lot of good coaching over the years and many good players have come from this school," Coach Brohman said.

HHSS physical education teacher Tim Davies, a former Redmen quarterback who went on to play with the Laurier Golden Hawks as a wide receiver, is the Redmen's offensive coach while Brohman looks after the defense. Assistant coach Bruce Griffith has been with the team for four years while his counterpart Paul Morissette joined the effort last year.

Six former Redmen are currently playing university football in Ontario: Minden's Dwayne Cooper was a member of the 1991 Vanier Cup champion Golden Hawks under coach Newborough; second-year offensive tackle Mark Robinson plays on Queen's University's football team; Trevor Powers is a wide receiver with York University; and offensive guard Alan Rydmen, running back Darren Danylyshen and defensive back Tally Williams are all members of the University of Waterloo Warriors football team.

Last year's junior Redmen, however, had a season unlike any HHSS team before them. They were more than incredible.

They were awesome.
Consisting of players aged under 16 as of Sept. 1, 1991, the juniors outscored their opposition 159-24 during the regular season, beat a combined effort by the significantly-larger Peterborough schools PCVS and Thomas A. Stewart 24-9 to win the regional title and trounced Trenton 23-1 to win the OCCA championship.

HHSS's seniors also had a fine season, finishing 4-2 in the regular season and losing 8-7 in the Kawartha championship game. Teams that win the Senior title go on to a provincial championship.

Gary Brohman and Rich Newborough

(OFSSA) but COSSA is the end of the line for the juniors.

Junior tailback Andy Bacon, who set school records with 1,531 rushing yards and 124 points on the year, was named as the team's Outstanding Offensive Player at Tuesday's dinner (surprise!, surprise!). Todd McCracken picked up the award for Outstanding Lineman and Peter Brohman won the prestigious Anibal Award, presented to the defensive player with the most points awarded for tackles, fumble recoveries, interception, knock-downs, quarterback sacks and defensive touchdowns. Brohman set a school record for animal points in 1991 and he and Bacon shared Most Valuable Player Award honours.

While Bacon was the centre of attention throughout the year with his seemingly effortless 60-yard touchdown dashes, coach Davies said defense was the key to the team's success.

"Winning COSSA was a total team effort," he said at the dinner. "Everyone did their job and because they did, tonight will be a night that all of the players will remember for the rest of their lives."

Bobcaygeon bringing Junior hockey back

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

A group of Bobcaygeon hockey enthusiasts has put the wheels in motion to bring a junior team back to the area.

The first two tryouts for the Junior 'C' Bobcaygeon Bullets will be held tomorrow (Wednesday) and Thursday nights at the Verulam Community Centre from 7 to 9 p.m. for any interested players in the Victoria, Haliburton and west-Peterborough areas.

"We thought we'd give it a shot and see if there's enough interest to have a team," coach Jeff Nicholls told The Echo.

"So far, we've had a great response and expect about 40 or 50 kids to tryout."

Bobcaygeon's Junior 'D' Titans, a popular team for decades, folded 13 years ago but a recent resurgence in minor hockey in the area has led Nicholls and Dave Thompson to bring junior hockey back.

The team is now in the process of looking for sponsors and would play in the Central Ontario Junior 'C' League against Bowmanville, Lakefield, Little Britain, Port Hope, Port Perry and Uxbridge.

Nicholls, who coached Bobcaygeon's OMHA Pee Wees this year, said additional tryouts would also be held in the fall.

HCSA wraps up season

HCSA Happenings
Haliburton County Snowmobile Assoc.

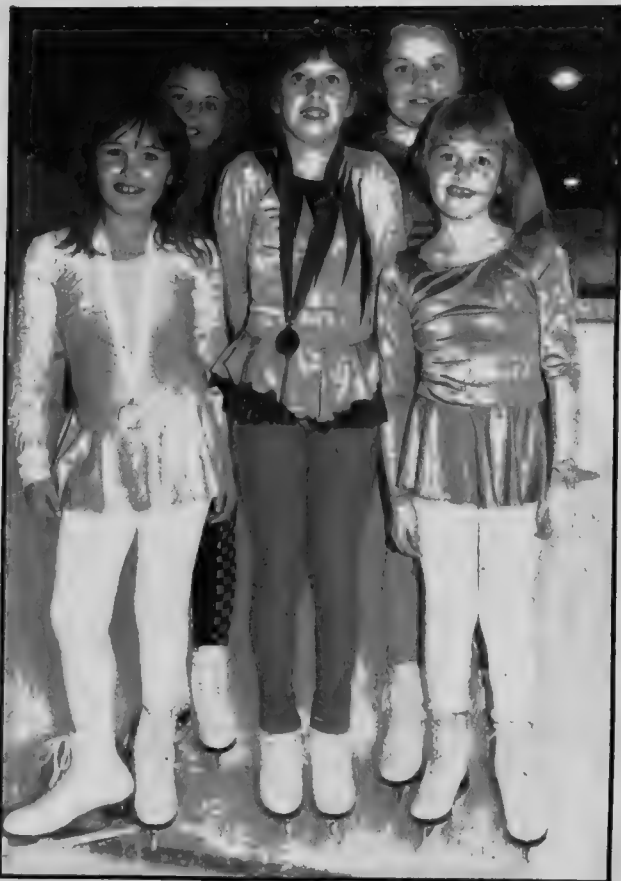

THE HALIBURTON COUNTY Snowmobile Association (HCSA) has just wrapped up its longest grooming season in recorded history. In its 21st year the HCSA has established itself as the largest snowmobile club in the world and has been recognized in many International, National and Provincial Publications as the leading snowmobile trail grooming club in North America.

HCSA President Brian Watts says Haliburton County received more than $13-million from the thousands of snowmobilers who came to Haliburton to enjoy the club's trails. Watts says "the importance of snowmobiling to our economy has been graphically demonstrated this winter. While most tourism related industries in Ontario are down snowmobiling tourists have flocked to Haliburton, spent a lot of money and helped our community in a bleak economy."

"I am very proud of the trails we groomed this winter — with only a few exceptions and members. Our volunteer based grooming program logged record hours on the club's five groomers. We groomed our trails around the clock, seven days a week. Haliburton businesses owe a great deal to those dedicated snowmobilers who operate our equipment."

HCSA Sign Chairman Peter Overington adds this was one of the safest winters for snowmobilers in Haliburton County with serious accidents down significantly from previous seasons. "The correlation between good quality groomed snowmobile trails and reduced accidents has been demonstrated in very clear terms in Haliburton this winter — better trails mean less road and lake accidents." The Province wide "Ride Safe — Ride Sober" public awareness campaign has had an effect on HCSA trails as well. The HCSA had dozens of the campaign posters up on their trail system this winter. HCSA equipment co-ordinator Bill Wilson says the HCSA is in desperate need of two more pieces of grooming equipment. "The HCSA trail system spans some 19 townships and three counties (Haliburton, Victoria and Hastings). Our five grooming machines are taxed to the limit right now — and our traffic has reached its highest levels ever with 8000 sleds riding our trails on weekends. We need to reduce the number of miles each machine is grooming so trail quality will improve and not deteriorate next season." Watts added, "It is time for this Province's Ministry of Tourism to support capital funding of grooming equipment. Snowmobiling is not solely a sport or recreation — it's a multi-million dollar tourist business that's growing all over this province. Frankly I'm tired of MTR's focus on the downhill ski business which revolves around a relatively small geographic area of the Province. Snowmobiling is generating nearly three quarters of a billion dollars according to a just released study — Government has got a great partner in us." Along with the day to day operations of grooming trails the HCSA has trained dozens of young people in the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs Driver Training Program. Work has already begun on trail and equipment improvements for next seasons snowmobiling in Haliburton County. For further information contact (705) 286-2135 or Haliburton County Snowmobile Association, P.O. Box 622, Minden Ont. K0M 2K0.

Close losses put Bantams near defeat

Continued from page 8 popped it in the Langton net and the Huskies were pressing for more. More didn't come, however, and Langton scored with just two minutes left to steal the game away. Huskie manager Karl Hartwick said the game was easily the team's best since the La Sarre tournament in Quebec. The Huskies came out skating again on Sunday and took a 2-0 lead on goals from Morissette and Bishop. Even the slightest bit of luck would have put them up by five, but the Lady just wasn't on Haliburton's side. The Huskies even had a goal called back as the referee didn't see the puck pass the goal line. Langton rode their good luck and scored three unanswered goals in the second to grab the lead. The pace was furious in the final period but the goal lights stayed dark and Langton is now just a tie away from the All-Ontario title. Game five will be played in Langton Saturday night and if the Huskies win, both teams will go at it again here in Haliburton Sunday at 1 p.m.

FOREST FIRES BURN MORE THAN TREES...

During 1991, 36 forest fires occurred in the Haliburton and Minden areas. The months of April and May are the most dangerous time. Dead grass and leaves will allow a fire to spread very quickly, resulting in the potential loss of life, dwellings and forested land.

Before you burn your grass, brush or debris, remember these important points:

1. You must obtain a fire permit;
2. Ensure that a responsible person tends the fire;
3. Keep the fire under control;
4. Upon completion, put your fire DEAD OUT. Even if it appears out, stir it and drown it with water, again and again, until you're sure it is out.
5. No burning allowed between 10:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. (with the exception of industrial permits).

 FIRE PERMITS ARE FREE OF CHARGE.

During the fire season (April 1st to October 31st) the Forest Fires Prevention Act requires you to obtain a permit to be kept at the burning site and shown to an officer upon request. If you don't, you could be fined up to $1,000.00, imprisonment up to three months and liable for any costs and expenses involved in extinguishing a resulting fire.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Youth Group is a blast!

When six- to 13-year-olds get together, they'll have a loud time

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

LOUD DANCE MUSIC blasted from the portable stereo on the stage as the young dancers gyrated and jumped and generally caused all the commotion that's frowned upon at home.

At the other end of the room, another handful of young people were taking a swing at ping pong, the ball often flying against the low ceiling. The line-up at the snack bar was constant as the patrons moseyed up to buy chips, popcorn and pop.

A group of parents ignored the ruckus and played cards while another parent taught their kids how to make chocolates. The large bowl of melted chocolate was understandably too hard to resist and it's amazing so many of the molded bunnies and eggs actually did get made.

For two hours on Friday night, the basement of the West Guilford Community Centre rocked with activities, as young people aged six to 13 got rid of some of that energy they are infamous for. Better they get rid of it here where they are supervised and safe than out on the streets, the parents say as they try to block out the loud music.

Eleven-year-old Steven Hewson sums up the feelings of many of the less-than-five-foot-tall crowd when he says he likes coming to Youth Group "to get away from my parents. They're boring." Brother Jamie agrees, to the laughter of this cool crowd. "They're a pain in the neck, parents."

Admittedly, not many parents would allow the music to be this loud at home, not even the parents who supervise the bi-monthly gatherings. When asked what the children want from the group, organizers Karen Koz and Shirley Johnston say "Loud music."

"It's something they can't have at home, I guess," says Mrs. Johnston, the chocolate and popcorn maker. Mrs. Koz says "as a parent it gives the kids someplace to go and let loose without worrying about breaking something."

"We came from the city and always had someplace to go and here you don't without driving all over the place. It makes you feel good, giving them something to do."

The price of youthful rebellion is low for the parents: only a few hours of trying to pretend you weren't like this when you were a kid.

In this rock video age, dancing is very important to young people. As the stereo pumps out the latest hits, they practise all the moves they've seen on tv, trying to outdo each other with "Can you do this?" (Most adults wouldn't begin to try.) The two 13-year-old girls, wishing more people their age came to the group, especially the male half of the teenage population, stand a bit apart, giggling and perfecting "the look."

"It's good to get out once in a while — you get cooped up at home. TV is too boring, it's all the same shows," says 11-year-old Nathan Koz. Sarah Rowden, 9, says "it's more fun than sitting at home. I like hanging around my friends because I don't see them much at school."

In small towns, transportation is always a problem. Amanda Morrison's girlfriend Jess Branigan can go to the movies in Haliburton, but Amanda's parents won't let her. She tries to argue it's only a 15-minute drive and they could go back home for the two hours the movie runs. (Heaven

While the children dance, parents play a sedate game of cards

Although the kids like getting away from parents the best, making chocolates is another good reason to go to Youth Group

Message in a basket leads to a journey into the 19th Century

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

NOT OFTEN WILL A NEW FRIEND take you on a journey 100 years back in time. And it's rarer still that the time machine is none other than the old-fashioned horse and buggy.

But that's just what happened when Rebeka Bjelis replied to a message in a tomato basket and found herself transported into the world of the Amish.

To back up a little, last August Rebeka's mother Elena (the Bjelis is pronounced Bee-ellis) brought home a basket of fresh, juicy tomatoes from the grocery store in Haliburton. As she was taking the tomatoes out to wash them, she found a note which read: "Please could you write Laura Gascho, 12 years old. Thanks a lot." An Alymer-area address was included.

Eleven-year-old Rebeka was intrigued by the note, so she sent Laura a Haliburton postcard, with a bit of information about Rebeka's family: dad Stefan, mom Elena, brothers Stefan and Robert and sister Emily. Perhaps Laura was intrigued by the image of forests and lakes, or maybe it was Rebeka's name, or maybe it was just simple curiosity. Because usually Laura just puts her name in the basket to see how far it travels — Haliburton has been the farthest so far — and this time she decided to write back.

"Dear friend Rebeka," Laura said. "Did I write on the paper I am Amish?"

There are 14 Gaschos in Laura's family: father Joseph, mother Rosemary and 11 brothers and sisters, ranging in age from 25 to six, with Laura just turning 13. They own about 30 cows — which they milk by hand twice a day — as well as pigs, chickens and horses. "It's soon to start making fall pastures with corn stalks and ripened pumpkins," she said. As to the Haliburton postcard, "it looks as if it's a very nice place to live with all the trees and water."

Before Rebeka sent her a letter in return, she looked up the word Amish in the encyclopaedia. Led by a Swiss preacher, Jacob Amin, this group of Protestants broke away from the Mennonites over a disagreement about church discipline, the Amish believing there wasn't enough of it. In the early 1700s, the Amish fled persecution and arrived in North America, where they set up farming communities.

That there are still Amish settlements in the 1990s is a testament to their strict adherence to their beliefs, not only about God, but also a simple life without any of the modern idols such as electricity and automobiles. There are no zippers in their clothes, only buttons, and while the women always wear dresses, they are plain in colour. Instead of turning attention on themselves, all thoughts are supposed to be on God. Church, which is conducted in people's homes, lasts three hours, with two hours of Sunday School.

Even though the Amish remain in a world of their own, they do not shut out the outside world. With Laura's reply to Rebeka's letter came an invitation to visit.

Perhaps some of Rebeka's excitement over the visit was trickled down from her mother, who grew up on a farm in Yugoslavia. "I lived in a similar situation," Mrs. Bjelis says, her voice warming to the memories of relying on horses for transportation and not having electricity until she was 8. Being able to visit the Gaschos "was like being a little girl again."

Waiting for the Bjelises in a horse and buggy were Laura and her father, who were worried the Haliburton family would get lost in the maze of country lanes. "It was like stepping back in time about 100 years, you're in awe," Rebeka says of her reaction when they were led down the driveway to the large farmhouse, where everyone was gathered for their noon-time meal. What struck the Bjelises first was the quiet. Ten children around a table usually spells chaos; here, once the meal was over, the family stood up in unison, the girls cleaning up the kitchen and the men leading their visitors in the family room. As young Robert and Emily noisily discovered — and fought over — the Gascho children's toys, the Gaschos sat in silence, with the parents doing most of the talking.

"It's amazing how these people don't argue,"

Please turn to page 19

This may look like a quiet family scene, but the Bjelis children - Emily, Rebeka, Stefan and Robert are amazed at how well behaved Amish children are. Happy and contented, the Amish can also have 12 people at the table without any bickering or food fights.

says Mr. Bjelis. "The kids do things independently — they don't need to be told what to do, they just do it."

But before these words convey an image of dour-faced adults and suppressed and fettered children, you should hear the Bjelises' second impression: all the Gaschos are so happy and content.

"They're peaceful and kind. They're never sitting around bored not doing anything," says Rebeka. "They're milking the cows, they're sewing."

ing."

"Reading Laura's letters, you don't say this child is being denied anything," says her mother. "One thing I really liked is they never have to worry about their family having jobs and food."

"I like how they're all there for each other and care for each other," adds Rebeka. She tells the story of the little Amish boy who broke his neck in a swimming accident. Because the Amish do not participate in the political or bureaucratic side of Canadian life, they did not have OHIP coverage. The medical bills amounted to almost half a million dollars, but everyone in the Amish community chipped in, just as they would rally around a farmer whose barn burnt down.

On the outside, having no electricity might make every-day chores seem doubly as difficult. When the Bjelises asked them about this, Mr. Gascho responded "If I had a tractor to do the work, what would I do with the rest of my time?"

Spare time might lead to activities which take you away from the simple life of faith and family, the life the Amish feel pleases God. Besides, if they got a tractor, they'd have to fix it. Mr. Bjelis says they feel "they would have more worries by having more possessions," and by the look on their Amish faces, they have a pretty worry-free life.

Rebeka also liked Laura's one-room school, with several grades being taught at the same time. When they are little, the Amish speak German, but they learn English in school: when in an English province, do as the English do. (Despite the Bjelises' Yugoslavian background, people outside the Gaschos' community are called "the English.")

"I wouldn't mind going to that kind of school and having some animals," Rebeka says. "I'd like to spend the whole summer there so I could experience their way of life." She laughs. "I think it would be interesting to wake up at five in the morning and milk the cows."

But what about having no television, no trips to the city, no electricity to make life easier? Rebeka admits she'd never give up this life for theirs, yet she sees value in both. "I think we're both fair," she says of the two lifestyles. "They have all that they need and we have all we need, only our things are just more fancy."

Laura has been asked to visit the Bjelises in Haliburton but her parents said no, too many temptations. Once the Gaschos did rent a car and a driver to take them to relatives in Ohio — Laura saved a McDonald's cup and stir stick as if they were fascinating mementos of a foreign culture — but they feel strongly about keeping their way of life pure, so it can last another few hundred years.

Meanwhile, the two girls will content themselves with letters. Laura will write of the harvest, and the simple pleasure of seeing a mole on her way to school. Rebeka will write of what her family is doing, and the activities of school with hundreds of students and most modern conveniences. They will travel through time together and discover a new place where all that matters is the happiness that true friendship can bring, no biases attached.

Amish warmth spreads to Haliburton

DURING A TRIP to the Gascho family farm near Alymer, Stefan Bjelis couldn't help but notice the large wood stove which served both as an oven and a furnace. Massive in size, it could both gently bake a loaf of bread to golden perfection, and also heat a house on the harshest winter nights.

Joseph Gascho took Mr. Bjelis to the small foundry where the Amish make their stoves without the aid of electricity. He also gave Mr. Bjelis a brochure on the stoves, full of the simple wisdom which captures the Amish way of life.

"When you really stop to think," the brochure says, "a cookstove is one of the most sensible ideas man has ever put fire to — an invention that will cook your meals, provide hot water at the tap, bake your bread, roast your turkey, dry your mittens, warm your feet and heat your home."

(Doesn't the cozy image almost make you wish winter was not making way for spring?)

Mr. Bjelis, a real estate salesman, is also into construction, especially during this slow season. And in the Highlands, many people like woodstoves for their practicality, cost-cutting efficiency and rustic charm.

Even though the Amish make their huge stoves without electricity, they can sell them for about half the price of other woodstoves. Noting Mr. Bjelis' interest, Mr. Gascho asked him if he wanted to be the distributor in Haliburton. Mr. Bjelis readily agreed, and next winter, a little bit of the Amish people's warmth will be spreading itself through Highlands' homes.

'I'd like to spend the whole summer there so I could experience their way of life,' says Rebeka, cradling the bouquet of dried flowers her new Amish friend made for her. 'It's like stepping back 100 years'

COMMUNITY NEWS

Search & Rescue needs volunteers to come to its aidWILBERFORCE
FLO ELLIOTT

There will be a special meeting of the Search and Rescue Team on Wednesday April 1st at 7:30 in the Lloyd Watson Memorial Centre. An O.P.P. officer will speak and show a film on this subject. This is the opportunity to have all your questions answered, and to become aware of the need for an organization of this kind in the community. The team is hoping a good crowd will show up for this as they need the support of the entire community.

A sure sign of spring, the deer are on the move. People have been seeing deer everywhere, even in the day time. They have been spotted on Cardiff Lake, on the old railway bed even on the highway. Another encouraging sign is that the fish huts are all off Dark Lake. Did the fish just stop biting or is the ice really going to melt. There have even been reports of blackbirds in the area.

The Monmouth Senior's Card Party on March 20th was well attended, with nine tables playing. Everyone enjoyed an evening of friendly rivalry and a lunch of coffee, juice and goodies afterwards. For the ladies, the booby prize was won by Kimberley Hattin; Ladies, low was won by Hilda Clark; ladies high by Luella Hogan; lone hands by Irma Dunford. For the men: low hand Jeff Klapow; Men's high Bill Jeske; lone hands Irwin Bowen. The door prize was won by Doreen Ablett.

The Anglican Church ladies held a pot luck lunch on Sunday March 22 in honor of Millie Ross. Millie is a long time member of the church and will soon be moving away from this area. On Monday March the 23rd, the Monmouth Senior's Club held an afternoon tea to wish Mille good luck in her new home.

The main tea table was beautifully decorated with silver tea service and flowers, and gaily colored treats. Long-time friends and members of the club took turns pouring. The individual tea tables looked lovely with crisp tea cloths, and dainty flowers. Many of Millie's friends and neighbours came to have a chat with her and enjoy a cup of tea, and to wish her happiness in her new home.

The Wilberforce Curling Club is very busy these days. The playoffs are almost finished and next week I'll try to have the results for you. In the meantime next week-end March 28th and 29th the Keith Cameron Bonspiel will be played. The following week-end they are planning a fun day of one on one, which will be enjoyed by all who take part as they always have a happy time together.

COOPER GRADUATION: Earl and Eleanor Cooper of West Guilford are proud to announce the graduation of their son, Andrew, from Royal Roads Military College of Victoria B.C. On May 16th he received a Bachelor of Science in Physics and Oceanography and his Queen's Commission as an Officer in the Canadian Armed Forces. Andy, born in February 1969, attended HHSS before being enrolled at Royal Roads. He has completed an arduous four-year academic program complemented by leadership experience, numerous sports activities, and second language training in French. He will now go onto a career as a Naval Officer in the Canadian Armed Forces. Congratulations and best wishes!

West Guilford News. . .

I am not the only one interested in theatre in the community. Wayne Cooper is producing "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum", with Louise Cooper as Domina, the august personage of impeccable patrician family, and Marcus Letourneau as Marcus Lycus are the two stars from Guilford involved in the hilarious musical. The High School Drama Club is responsible for the cast and by all accounts the production on April 2 and 3 at the high school should be highly entertaining. Come early and get a good seat! The Dalstra family — Brant, Mary-Ann, and four children of Bowmanville, were guests of the David Chumbleys recently.

Thanks to Peter Osborn and to Marty Sisson for assisting with Eric Lilius in setting up for the final concert of the series on Saturday, March 21. The props were many and heavy and the work needed all the strength and co-operation the three could give to have the set ready for the evening performance by Ontario Ballet Theatre. Many thanks from the pres.

At time of writing Blanche Barry is in Peterborough hospital recovering from surgery. We wish her a good recovery and prompt return home.

Visiting collies put smile on residents' faces

SENIOR LEAGUE
WINNIFRED BARNUM

After a quiet weekend and a Chapel Service with Rev. John Burgess brings us a very helpful service Sunday evening with Alice Jones playing the organ, we have had a very active week.

Monday morning we had fitness. At 1:00 Evelyn Coleman had Bible Study. This was followed by a puppy petting party in the Auditorium. Joan and Wally Bunn, their daughter Stacey, Rhonda Francis and her son Darnell, brought their Scotch Collies to entertain us. They set up wire cages to control them. There was a "bearded collie", a "Sheltie blue collie", a "Sable coloured collie" and I think eight eight-week old puppies. They were not in the cages very much. Those pups never had so much petting and cuddling and may never again. The Residents' faces just beamed with happiness. Many thanks to those who made this possible.

March 17, 1992 as we all know, was St. Patrick's Day. It began with Pastor Fast taking Tuesday Chapel Service. Special guests at the Service were Connie, Becky and Sarah Schwartz-ruber. In the afternoon we had the pleasure of music by Bill Geddis on the keyboard and Fred Cooper. Most Residents and Staff wore green and sat at tables around the Auditorium and sipped fruit drinks, tea, coffee and Irish coffee. The main event was the first appearance of the Haliburton Highland Cloggers in public. I understand the Cloggers were all from West Guilford. Their instructor is John Dickerson and Lloyd Priest manned the video camera. The girls were Kelly Mowder, Marianne Howard, Connie Houghton, Lisa Henry, Kim Henry, Lauri Blanchard, Mary Simms, Bonnie McCausland and Susan Houghton. We thoroughly enjoyed them and the entire day.

Wednesday, after lunch, we gathered in the Auditorium to have a quiz on everything Irish. While answering questions we enjoyed an afternoon tea of loaf cake, cheese and English scones (made by Mary Oliver — who is 102 years old). There were preserved Crab Apples to accompany the scones, picked from the apple tree at the back of Hylaad Crest, cooked and canned by Linda Fry and Doris Robertson. It was all delicious.

Thursday morning we had a treasure hunt. We were divided into two groups. Harry Hughes (captain) of the O'Reillys, and Winnifred Barnum (captain) of the McNamaras. Each group had a list of objects to find anywhere in the Home. As it was Thursday tea party, it was decided who won when we had a delicious lunch served by the Hyland Crest Auxiliary ladies — Marion Fisher, Jean Bolt, Angela O'Neil, Jean Robson, Anne Baker, and Nancy Cook.

The winners of the contest were: for guessing the weight of the Blarney Stone, Lillian Harrison; how many Murphys in a bag, Lillian Harrison.

The Residents of Hyland Crest wish to express their sympathy to relatives and friends of Lillian Hogg, who passed away Sunday, March 22, 1992.

Thanks to all who made it such a colourful and entertaining week.

Obituary

WILLIAM HENDERSON

It is with much sadness his family announces the sudden passing of William A. Henderson in his 59th year at Colspay Bay, Ont. on Feb. 19, 1992. Bill was the son of the late Edna and Ross Henderson and predeceased by wife Audrey in March 1990. Left to mourn his loss are daughters Penny and son-in-law Eugene HNatiw of Stroud, Ont., Lisa and son-in-law Carmen Myles of Lion's Head, Ont., Robin of Richmond Hill, Ont., Fondly remembered by six grandchildren, sister Denise and brother-in-law Bud Teasdale of Peterborough, Marlene and brother-in-law Larry Jonassen of Winnipeg. Brother Claude and many nieces and nephews.

Bill grew up on the family farm in Maple Lake, he left Haliburton to work at Massey Ferguson in Toronto, and later joined the Canadian Armed Forces and enjoyed the Ordinance Corps. for 20 years. He purchased Crystal Springs Motel at Mar Ont. in 1977, sold the business last fall and moved into a new home in Colspay Bay hoping to enjoy his retirement.

A legion service was held in St. George's Chapel, Warton on Friday evening. Complete funeral service was held in the chapel on Saturday, Feb. 21st 1992. Rev. Barnes officiated with comforting words.

Mrs. Lila Duff's Eulogy was a special tribute to Bill. She and her husband were close neighbours for many years.

Spring interment in Colspay Bay Cemetery.

Children arrive for March Break

Carnarvon News

ANN MCKAY

Last weekend Mr. and Mrs. Garth Windsor visited with Helen's sister and family in Trenton.

Mr. Tony Pegat of Toronto spent the weekend with Bill and Jan McKay.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Archer had grandchildren from London Ont. spend the school break with them.

Mrs. Doris Redner is staying with her brother Albert in Kirkfield while his wife Doreen has a holiday in Florida with her sister Fern.

Our Robday in Florida came to an abrupt end when

Max took ill there and was hospitalized in Panama

City. On returning to Canada he was again hospitalized in Brockville then transferred to Civic in Peterborough where he had surgery. He is home now and is progressing though very slowly.

We were pleased to hear Mabel Russell is back home after her stay in a Toronto Hospital.

Our prayers and get well wishes to Bill Kleinschmidt who is ill at his home.

YWCA seeks Woman of the Year candidates

The YWCA of Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton is pleased to present The 13th Annual Woman of the Year Award on Thursday, April 30.

This award will honour and celebrate the achievements of women in Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton Counties.

As of March 9, the YWCA is calling for organizations and individuals to nominate the woman of their choice for this award.

Nomination Packages will be available at the YWCA Women's Safety Network, Haliburton, Ontario, OR Phone the YWCA Women's Safety

Network at 457-3355 and Nomination Packages will be mailed upon request.

All Nomination Packages must be returned to the YWCA attention: Lisbeth Shaw-Cullen, 216 Simcoe Street, Peterborough, Ontario K9H 2H7 no later than 4:00 p.m. Friday, April 3, 1992.

AN INSTANT WINNER: Eagle Lake resident Anita Coleman won $25,000 in one of the Ontario Lottery Corporation's current Instant games, Lucky O'Instant. She and her husband, John, plan to share the money with their three children and five grandchildren. Lucky O'Instant offers players two chances to win. In the main play area, players who scratch and match three identical prize amounts, or two prize amounts and a clover symbol, win that prize. The bonus play area is also a match three game.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Sunny south lures vacationers away

SHEILA LAKE

Intended for last week

Best wishes to Mrs. Helen Mullin, a resident of Hillhaven, Bobcaygeon, and formerly of Head Lake, west of Norland, on the occasion of her 90th birthday recently.

Harvey Farrow celebrated his 83rd birthday quietly on March 18th. Best wishes, Harvey!

Scott and Phyllis La Plante and baby girl are home following a vacation in Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hall of Lindsay were recent visitors of Mrs. Ruth Fralick and Clara Schell.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cameron were recent visitors of their son, Gary and wife Susanne and their new baby daughter, at Orillia.

Lots of Coby folk are on the sick list. Morris Angiers is in hospital in Lindsay. Olive Goodhand went to hospital on Sunday night and is in intensive care. Morris Winterburn suffered a bad fall and is partially paralyzed, so I'm told. Get well wishes to all you folk.

Sincere sympathy goes out to the bereaved families of the late Walter Luff, whose funeral was March 18th. Mr. Luff was in his 102nd year, likely the oldest Somerville Township resident.

Sympathy goes out too, to the families of the late Lil Angiers, wife of late Sandy Angiers and to Shirley Angiers family, wife of late Mike Angiers, all former Cobocohk natives.

Get well wishes to Lena Hughes now home here but who was ill in Oshawa Gen. Hospital. Kelly Richmond of Bexley, went to hospital in Toronto for surgery.

Happy fifty-first anniversary, Bill and Millie Moss.

Rob and Shelly Parker and children are enjoying a holiday in the south.

Leo and Elly Hannivan are home after a holiday in the south.

Clint and Heather Hirstwood and family enjoyed the day skiing at Horseshoe Valley on Tuesday, along with Bill and Karen Hirstwood, Matthew and Rachel of Sutton West.

The robins are numerous the pats two weeks and flocks of starlings are seen nearly every day. Mourning doves and crows create beautiful music most mornings in the evergreen trees across the road. Can it be the end of winter? Let's hope so — after such bitter cold temperatures of the past week. We still have lots of snow for snowmobiles but hopefully we'll soon see little puddles.

We enjoyed a visit with Bob, Marilyn and Robert Lake in Peterborough on Sunday night.

Harry Basinger is not feeling well lately. Trust the warm weather will help, Harry!

Sincere sympathy to Martha and Douglas Swanson in the death of his mother, Gladys Swanson.

THANK YOU

CARD OF THANKS — Honest people deserve recognition, as by the honesty and kindness of Mack Ellis my pension check was picked up from the street and returned to the Post Office. Many thanks Mack. A Haliburton Senior.

27-P-31

THANKS TO ALL who remembered me with cards, prayers, flowers, phone calls and various acts of kindness during my sojourn in Civic Hospital. Friends and a caring community are a little bit of heaven here on earth. Sincerely Aileen Brown.

27-B-31

PEGGIE & JOHN Barclay wish to thank everyone for their cards, phone calls and best wishes while John was in Hospital. A special thank you to the Rug Hookers, Faith Group and members of the Parish of Minden for their continued prayers. It is a great comfort at times like this to know you aren't alone and that such a strong support group exists. God Bless you all.
